

ABOUT ME *

Vickie Amoah is a dynamic Ghanaian creative who utilizes her passion for the arts to bring about societal change. With a versatile skill set spanning authorship, music, entrepreneurship, and broadcasting, she is a powerhouse in her field. As a singer, songwriter, and worship leader, Vickie has two albums and a single to her credit. She shares her expertise through personalized and group vocal lessons, mentoring emerging musicians.

Vickie is an accomplished writer who has made significant contributions to local publications and marked her literary journey with the launch of her debut book, "The Power of Faith Confession," alongside her second album, "Confessions," released in 2019.

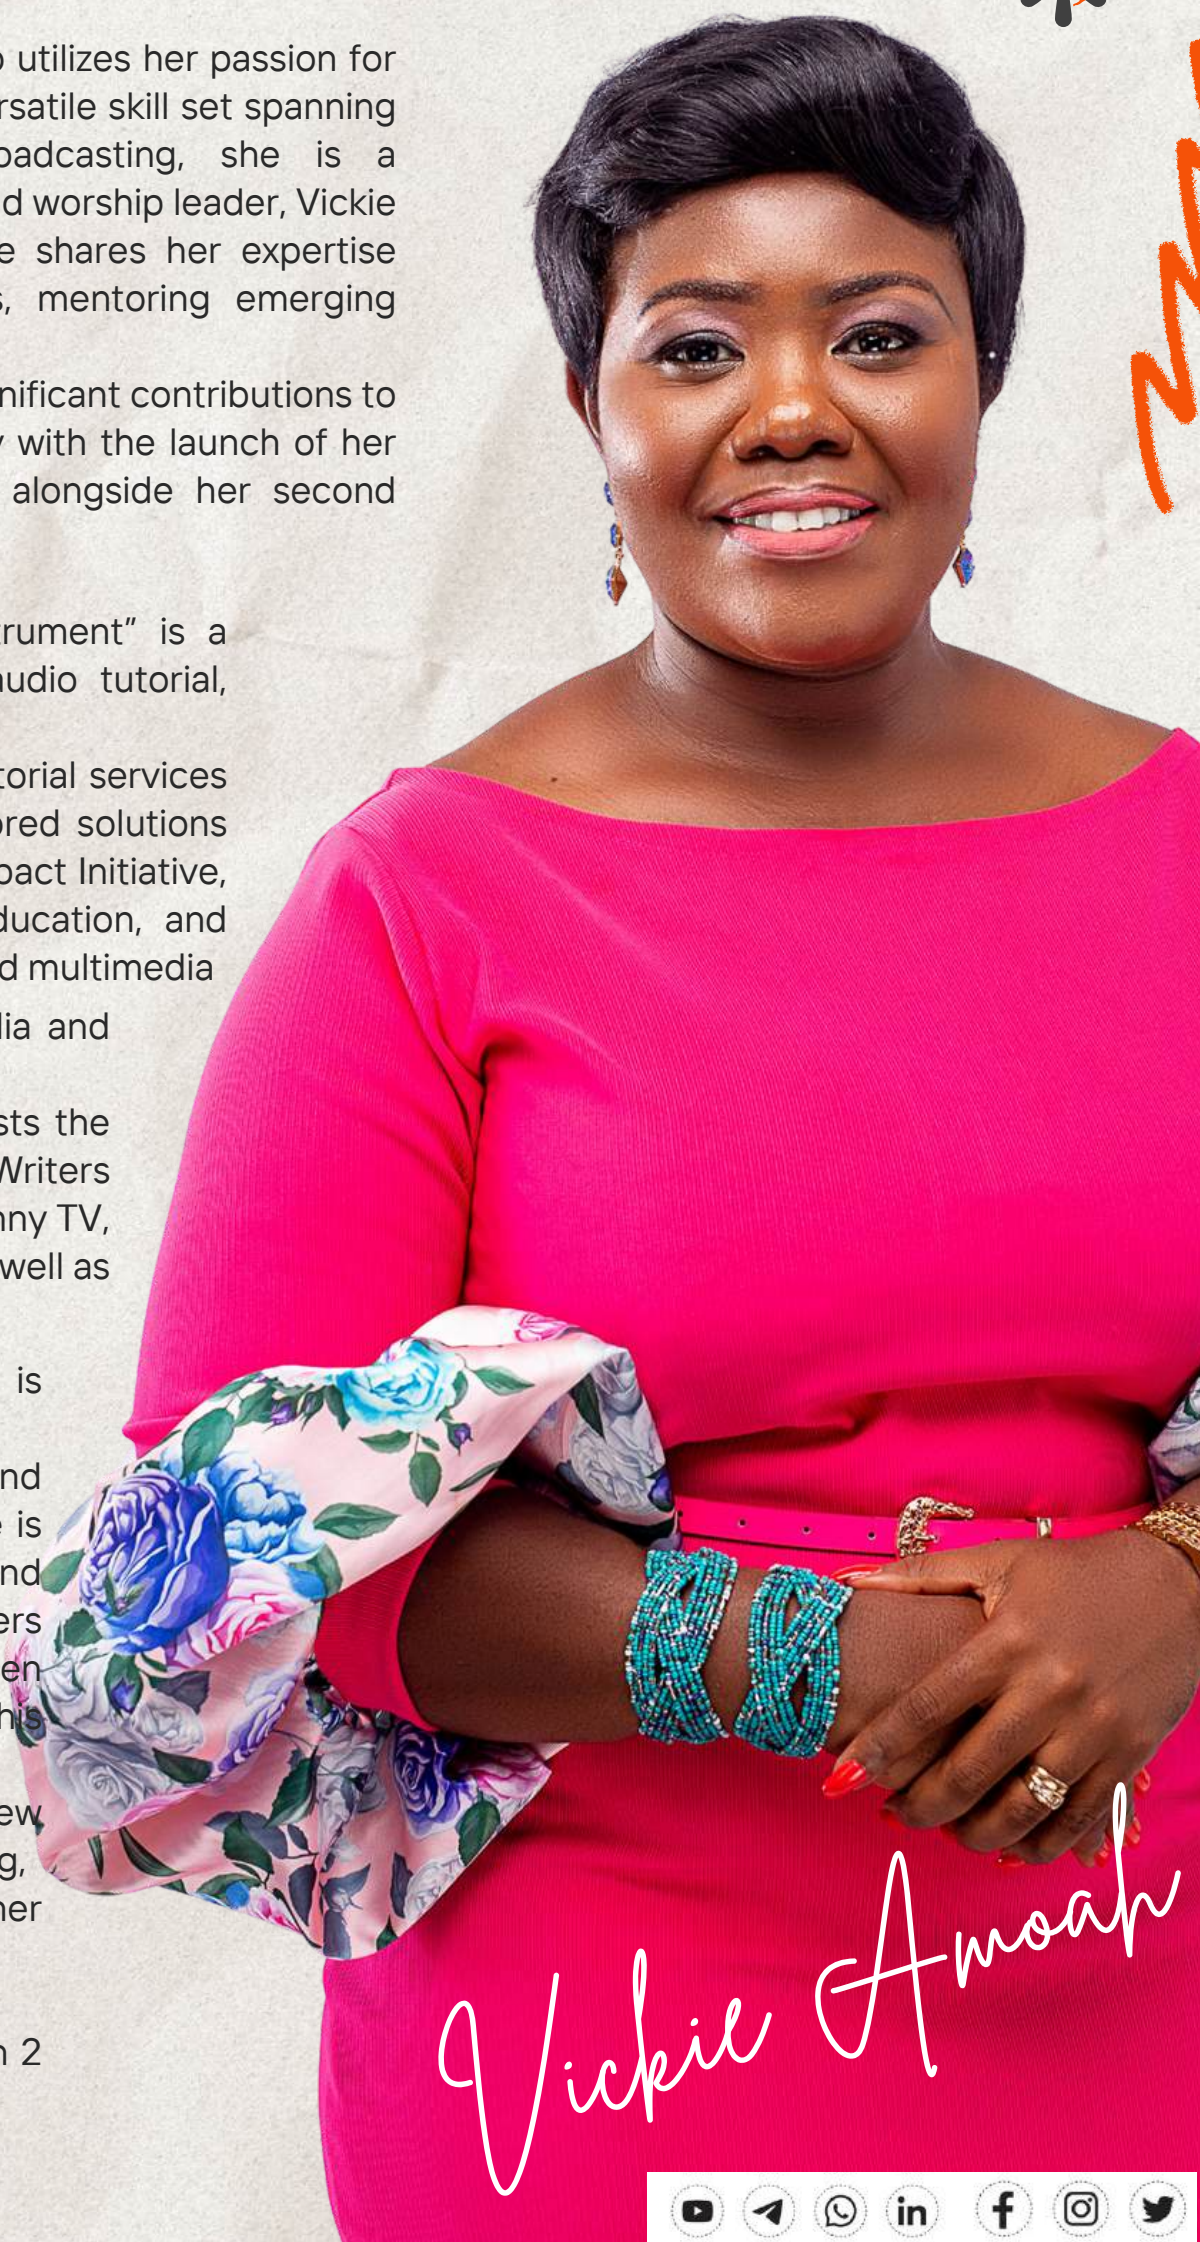

Her vocal training manual, "My Voice; My Instrument" is a comprehensive resource accompanied by an audio tutorial, aimed at empowering aspiring singers.

Vickie co-founded Reveal Multimedia Ltd., an editorial services company amplifying authors voices through tailored solutions across various platforms, and leads the Reveal Impact Initiative, a non-profit organization promoting literacy, education, and empowerment through innovative programmes and multimedia productions. Drawing on her background in media and communications, Vickie has worked with multiple private radio stations in Ghana, and currently hosts the afternoon show - "Positive Soul Food" and "The Writers Blog Book Review Show" on Sunny 88.7fm and Sunny TV, a Christian Radio Station based in Accra-Ghana as well as PCG TV.

Beyond her professional endeavours, Vickie is committed to nurturing young minds through her involvement with the "TWB Kiddie Book Club" and "Nyansapo Club." As a Certified Counselor, Vickie is committed to helping individuals, couples and families navigate life's challenges. She empowers parents and guardians to confidently raise children who will impact future generations. She achieves this through both virtual and in-person parenting workshops. When not immersed in learning a new song, sampling new music online, writing, or reading, Vickie enjoys watching good movies during her leisure time.

She is married to David and they are blessed with 2 lovely children. Find out more about Vickie here...
